UPDATED 26 NOVEMBER 2026

Website terms and disclaimer

Real journeys, our own experiences and independent stories. These terms explain the information, photographs and use of Backpackingkids.

1. About Backpackingkids

Backpackingkids is Marcel Visser's personal travel website, trading as Backpackingkids. Dutch Chamber of Commerce number: 83574670. Contact: info@backpackingkids.nl.

The site shares travel stories, photographs, routes and practical information. We are not a tour operator, booking agent or representative of the accommodation, surf schools or other providers mentioned. Reading this site does not create a travel or booking contract with us.

2. Our experiences are real

Travel stories and reviews are based on destinations, stays and activities that we, or the family members identified in the story, actually visited or experienced. Not every family member was present on every trip.

Future journeys and ideas are clearly presented as plans or travel ideas, rather than accounts of completed trips. Background information about a destination does not automatically describe a personal experience.

3. Use of AI

We use AI tools to improve the website, including its technology, structure, language, translation and presentation. The experiences described and our own images come from our real travel archive.

Using AI does not change our responsibility for what we publish. We do not use AI to present invented trips, hotel stays, reviews or events as our own experiences.

4. No paid promotion or commercial partnerships

We are not open to commercial partnerships and do not accept payment to promote anything. We do not accept money, gifts, free accommodation, free activities, promotional discounts, affiliate commissions or other benefits in exchange for a mention, recommendation or positive review.

Accommodation, surf schools, restaurants and other businesses do not buy a place on this website. Our links and opinions arise from our own experiences and choices.

Our own book is clearly identified as our publication. It is not a sponsored recommendation of a third party. Information about the book and how its profit is used appears on the book page.

5. Photographs, videos and other content

All our own travel photographs and videos on this website belong to Marcel Visser/Backpackingkids. Our original texts and other original content are also protected by copyright.

Without prior written permission, you may not copy, republish, sell, use commercially or present our material as your own. Ordinary links to our website are welcome. Statutory exceptions, such as permitted quotation, continue to apply.

Maps, logos, embedded posts and other third-party material remain subject to their original owners' rights. Inclusion on our site does not transfer those rights.

To request use of a photograph or text, or report material you believe has been posted incorrectly, email info@backpackingkids.nl.

6. Information is not a promise

We take care with the site, but information may become outdated or contain an error. Our opinions are personal. An experience in a particular year is no guarantee of a later visit.

Information on this website does not create an entitlement to a particular price, availability, quality, safety or result. Prices and circumstances may relate to a past journey and are not an offer from us.

Before booking or travelling, check current information with the provider and relevant official authorities, particularly for access, opening hours, transport, travel documents, health, safety and water activities.

7. External providers and booksellers

If you use a link to book or buy accommodation, an activity, product or book from an external provider, your contract is with that provider. Their terms apply to the purchase or booking.

We do not control external providers' prices, availability, service or privacy policies. A link does not guarantee that information on the other website is complete or current.

8. Your judgement and statutory rights

Our stories do not replace personal advice from a qualified professional and are not safety instructions. Make suitable decisions for your family and local conditions.

These terms do not remove mandatory consumer protections or other statutory rights. The applicable law determines whether liability exists and to what extent. A disclaimer does not automatically exclude legal liability.

9. Corrections and contact

If a name, link or description needs correcting, or you have a question about using our material, email info@backpackingkids.nl so we can review it.

Personal data and cookies are covered by the separate Privacy and cookie policy. These terms were last updated on 26 November 2026. Dutch law applies to the use of our own website content, subject to any mandatory protection applicable elsewhere.